

Best and the rest of the past week

Saturday, Oct. 18, 2008

Editorial Page
Connecticut Post

Thumbs up to the University of Bridgeport, which announced fall enrollment figures 12 percent higher than a year ago. It's the fifth straight year UB's enrollment has increased by double digits, reaching 5,323 students this year. Undergraduate enrollment is up to 2,028, with the rest of the students at the graduate level. It hasn't always been easy at the South End campus, but the positive news is worthy of recognition. As the community around it works to regain its previous stature, the gains from the city's namesake university can only be a boon. The university and city look forward to further progress in the years to come.